Unit 1 Skills Practice

A Read for detail

- 1 Where does this text come from?
 a a diary b a novel c a magazine

A life in pictures

1 Jethro Wiggins' photographs are currently on show at the Expressions Print Gallery. You might know that Jethro, 36, is the son of Duke Donald, lead singer of The Pillbox Band. He talked to us recently, here at Dare magazine, about the people in his life.

2 'A lot of people expected me to become a singer, like my father. He wasn't a great example, though. I hardly ever saw him when I was a child; he was always on tour with his band. I think my mother was disappointed in him too, because my parents got divorced when I was about ten.

3 'A few years later, my father remarried. My stepmother's a hairdresser. She didn't have any children of her own, so she spent a lot of time with me. She was just wonderful. We often went out to explore places, and she showed me how to use my first camera. She had a box full of her own photos. You know, artistic pictures, and that's what got me interested in photography.

4 'Friends? Well, I know my best friend Chris from our time at art college. We had a really good time there! He's a painter in Berlin now, but we keep in touch when we can. And there's Todd. He's just crazy. He works in a commercial photographic laboratory, but we spend time at weekends doing old-fashioned black-and-white developing. It's so different from modern digital work. And of course there's my girlfriend, Myriam. She's a model. We met when I was at a fashion magazine. She's the best thing that ever happened to me.'

Harvey's family were originally from Jamaica, but they've been here for three generations now, and my family are all local too. Harvey was a widower when we first met, at a local theatre group. I'm a social worker by profession, but I've always loved acting.
- Our other hobby is jazz. Harvey plays the trumpet – he's just the best! And I do a bit of singing. There's a great jazz club in town that we go to about twice a month.

2 Unit 2 Skills Practice

A Read for detail

1 What kind of text is this?

- a an anecdote
- b a letter
- c a magazine article

1 Of all the exotic traditions on the planet, the neck coils worn by the women of South-East Asia must be one of the most unusual.

2 These women belong to the Padaung people, a small ethnic group of about 7,000 people who live in northern Thailand. The women start wearing the neck coils at about the age of five. As they grow older, they add more coils. The weight of the metal pushes the shoulders down, and this gives the impression of a very long neck. It's possible to take the coils off, but that doesn't happen very often, because it is very uncomfortable.

3 There are many stories relating to the origins of this custom. Some say that the coils once protected the women from slavery, or were worn to guard against tiger attacks. Others say that they were worn as a sign of beauty and wealth. In the past, men who were looking for a wife chose the women with the best coils. But perhaps the most interesting story is the origin-myth of the Padaung people. This story says that Man was the wind, and Woman was a beautiful, long-necked dragon.

When the dragon was flying through the sky, the wind fell in love with her, and the Padaung people were born from the union of the two.

Ever since then, the women of the tribe have worn the coils, in memory of their dragon-mother.

2 Write the paragraph number next to the ideas.

- a why the women use the coils
- b introducing the topic
- c how the coils work

3 Correct the facts in these sentences.

- 1 The Padaung people live in southern Thailand.
The Padaung people live in northern Thailand.
- 2 Women are fifteen when they start wearing neck coils.

- 3 As the women get older, the coils become lighter.

- 4 They take off the coils at night, when they want to sleep.

- 5 The text mentions five stories about the origin of the coils.

- 6 In the past, men chose women with the most coils.

- 7 The wind found the dragon on a mountain top.

- 8 The women wear the coils to remember the wind.

5 Listen again and then correct these phrases.

- 1 I didn't see you for a very long time.
- 2 When you see people, you touch them on the cheeks.
- 3 Ask what the other people do, and then just do the opposite.

C Read a travel blog

8 Match paragraphs 1–5 to topics a–e.

- a Recommendations for visitors
- b What happened after lunch
- c The temple
- d Getting there
- e What happened at lunch

1 It was a hot, sunny day when we decided to visit Gharapuri (also known as Elephanta). The trip took half an hour and cost about 250 rupees. During the crossing, we saw a lot of big ships going to and from Mumbai, so we often felt quite small on the ferry! When we got to the island, we had to climb lots and lots of steps up to the temple. So then we rested at the entrance and drank some water. Twenty minutes later, we went inside.

2 The first thing we noticed was the temperature. I mean, the temple is like a big cave cut out of the rock, so it's much cooler than outside. And it isn't very light, so at first you can't see properly. Then you see this enormous sculpture with three heads. The guide book says these are the three aspects of the Hindu god Shiva. Amazing! We visited the rest of the temple, and then looked for somewhere to have lunch.

3 We found a quiet place under a big tree and got our sandwiches out. Then three or four monkeys appeared. My brother took a photo – and the monkey took his sandwich! Next, another one stole some fruit we had near the bags, so we chased the monkeys away. In the end, we finished eating quite quickly.

4 Afterwards, we climbed the hill to see the views from the top. We sat down to rest. The weather was still warm, and we fell asleep. When we woke up, it was much cooler, so we ran back to the ferry stop. But the last ferry leaves at six, and it was nearly seven o'clock. And that's how we discovered that there's nowhere to sleep on the island: we had to sleep under a tree!

5 Anyway, Gharapuri is a fantastic place to visit. Just remember these two things: don't eat in front of the monkeys, because they're a real pest. And don't miss the last ferry back to Mumbai!

- 2 None of us knew the place, so it was a bit of an adventure, and we got completely lost at one point. My friend Dave nearly fell into a canal ' when we were crossing a bridge ' because he wasn't looking where he was going! But we managed to find the Van Gogh museum, where we had to queue for two hours. There were so many people! ² _____ , I met an old friend from school. The world's a small place!
- 3 We stayed in a travellers' hostel, and met some friendly Italians ³ _____. The hostel was cheap and clean, although you have to be very tidy. Ten people in one dormitory can be a problem! And for food, we generally ate in fast food places. Did you know the Dutch have mayonnaise with their chips? But on my birthday we had a special big meal at an Indonesian restaurant. ⁴ _____ after that when my best mate Billy lost his camera. Poor Billy, he was really annoyed.
- 4 Anyway, public transport is good, so it's easy to get around the city. A lot of people rent bikes, but we preferred to go by bus. You have to be careful though. You get your ticket from a machine, not from the driver. ⁵ _____ on Friday, two of the boys didn't have any money to buy a ticket, and an inspector caught them. They had to pay five times the fare! They tried to say they were foreigners, but the man didn't accept that. The rest of us just laughed. In the end, we all had a great time and would love to go back to Holland.

- a Boring concert
- b Incredible concert
- c Wet concert

- 1 The Skitoid Kids are on tour at the moment, to promote their new album Slave Trade. The 20-concert tour has gone well so far, with big crowds at most venues, and good weather as well. That's probably why last night's concert, number 17 of the tour, which was held in the Fanfield football stadium, was so disappointing. In terrible weather, their good luck turned into bad.
- 2 There were certainly a lot of great things about the concert. First of all, the audience of about 30,000 cheering fans who sang along to the songs. Most of them were in seats, so the two large video screens on each side of the stage were really helpful for everyone to see the musicians. The ten songs in the first part of the concert included classics like Hate your Love and Go Down. Melvyn Twigg gave a powerful performance on the drums with Binge Day. Micky Welch, the new keyboard player, did well on both the rock songs and the slow ballads. Welch has a very promising future with the band.
- 3 The problems started in the second half of the concert. Something went wrong with the sound quality and the singers' voices got lost in the overpowering music. Three songs later, the audience began to get impatient, because they still couldn't hear the vocals. And then suddenly heavy rain started and the concert had to stop.
- 4 All in all, it was a very acceptable performance at the beginning, but a disastrous ending for the concert. The organizers have promised a repeat concert for next Spring. Let's hope the weather will be better!

2 Match the paragraph numbers with the topics.

Flightplan is a thriller that tells the story of a mother's desperate hunt for her daughter. ¹ _____ when Kyle Pratt (Jodie Foster) falls asleep on an aeroplane. When she wakes up again, her daughter has disappeared.

Ordinary parents in that kind of situation might never find their child again. But Kyle Pratt is no ordinary mother. She's an aviation engineer, whose husband has died in Berlin. She and her daughter Julia are flying back to the USA with his body when the film opens. But nobody remembers seeing the girl on the plane. Worst of all, nobody really believes Kyle's story. Kyle persuades Captain Rich to search for Julia, but without success.

² _____ Kyle starts searching by herself, but she causes problems, so the captain orders Carson – the security officer – to keep her under control. Kyle, however, knows every part of the plane, and quickly escapes from Carson.

³ _____ after Kyle's escape focuses on her efforts to find Julia. Despite all the difficulties, she doesn't give up. And when ⁴ _____ she locates the girl, she discovers a much bigger problem that affects the safety of all the passengers on the plane. But she can't tell anyone, because they won't believe her. She must take action herself, especially when she is left alone with Carson, who is actually a hijacker.

- 1 Ratatouille is a fun cartoon film about a rat that becomes a chef in a Parisian restaurant. It takes you into a special world where humans and animals live and work together. ¹In the end, these unusual friends manage to run a successful restaurant.
- 2 The film stars Remy, the talented rat. He plays the part of assistant to Linguini, the kitchen boy. Linguini is tall, thin and clumsy. ²He always wears a chef's jacket and trousers, and a tall white hat. The restaurant has not had very many customers. But Remy has lots of fantastic ideas for cooking, and soon it becomes a popular place to eat.
- 3 Linguini and Remy have to fight Skinner the chef and a health inspector, too. I like the part where the arrogant food critic Anton Ego tries Remy's special dish, Ratatouille. That's a kind of vegetable dish in tomato sauce. ³You can also make it with sausages or steak, if you prefer. Ego believes he has found the perfect restaurant. But of course no respectable restaurant can have rats. And when the food critic discovers that a rat prepared his food, he goes completely crazy!
- 4 After watching Ratatouille, you will never think about restaurants in the same way again. I'd recommend it to anyone who enjoys animated films, or good food. You might even learn to cook better yourself!

- 10 The film review is better without the sentences in red. Match them with these reasons.
- a extra detail not needed in a brief description
 - b reveals the ending
 - c information not relevant
- 11 Think of a film you have seen. Make notes for four paragraphs about your film. Use the four topics in exercise 10.

- 1 Question: what connects these three things – a man with a story about an old grey coat; another man with a photograph of a painting of a dead king; and fishermen's reports that they had heard gunshots? Answer: these three things could help to solve the 120-year-old mystery of how King Ludwig II of Bavaria really died.
- 2 Ludwig II – often called Mad King Ludwig – was King of Bavaria in the 1880s. He was famous for building romantic castles, for spending a lot of money, and for being eccentric. One day in 1886, his body was discovered in a lake near Munich, together with the body of his psychiatrist. The traditional explanation was that Ludwig, who had emotional problems, drowned himself in the lake.
- 3 In 2007, however, new clues appeared which suggest a different interpretation of events. An old man from Munich remembers that as a child he had seen the king's grey coat with two bullet holes in the back. An art historian has a photograph of a painting of the dead king, which was done hours after the king's death, showing blood coming from the mouth. If the king had really drowned in the lake, there would not have been any blood. And two fishermen reported in 1886 that they had heard gunshots on the lake. All of these clues have created new public interest in the case.
- 4 So the mystery continues. Was the king murdered? If so, who killed him, and why? The truth will only be known if his body can be examined by scientists. But for that to happen, his family have to give permission, and no-one is sure if that will ever happen.

- 9 Read the text more carefully. Which paragraph:
a asks questions about the future of the case?
b describes the events leading up to the king's death?
c introduces the mystery?
d gives new evidence about the king's death?

Historians said that ⁴*they couldn't be real, because ancient people hadn't had enough technology to make them*. - 1 Read the text quickly and tick ✓ the best title.
- a Life without neighbours
 - b Missing our neighbours
 - c Model neighbours

1 _____ Who wants them? We all complain about them, but what would life be like without them?

2 _____ There were seven floors, six flats per floor, 42 families all in the same building. The family downstairs were shouting and swearing all the time. The man upstairs practised his violin five days a week. The woman next door always complained about our dog, but when she had repairs in the flat, the builders and carpenters spent two weeks in the hallway. She said they would make her flat dirty! And when the lifts needed modernizing, half of the families at the community meeting said that the changes were unnecessary. We often wished for a quieter life, without so many people around.

3 _____ We expected to have some peace and quiet. No more noisy neighbours, no more waiting for the lift, no more arguments at the community meetings. And then we noticed that the neighbours here are different. Nobody says hello. Nobody offers to look after the children for an hour, if there's an emergency. All we see are big cars, burglar alarms, and people who have no time to stop to chat.

4 _____ The difficulties of living together don't seem so important now. In the block of flats, there was a sense of community. Whatever the problems, there were always other people around. We shared the same address and similar routines. Where we live now, it's certainly quieter, but it's also much less human.

- 7 Whose news? Read the letter and write C for Carrie, N for Nancy.
- 1 Matthew's accident
 - 2 Jim's new job
 - 3 Jim's grandmother
 - 4 Irene's new flat

Dear Nancy,

Thanks for your letter. It was great to read all your news. I was sorry to hear about Matthew's accident. You said he had a broken leg, didn't you? Is he out of hospital now? Send him our best wishes for a quick recovery.

Well, we've got news for you, too – some good, some not so good. Jim's grandmother died last Sunday. We got a phone call at lunchtime, to say that she had fallen in the kitchen. Unfortunately, we didn't arrive in time to see her. I expect you remember that she'd been ill for some time. She was 92, and she'd had a fantastic life. We loved her a lot. We'll miss her a great deal.

The good news, however, is that Jim has now got a new job. Perhaps you remember him losing his job when the car factory closed? He went for a lot of interviews, but they all said he was too old. I mean, he's only 45! Not surprisingly, he was beginning to get a bit depressed. Thankfully, they phoned him yesterday to offer him a job at a local college, training mechanics. So he's really pleased.

Anyway, it was wonderful to hear that Irene's finally found a flat to buy. I'm so happy for her! It's so hard these days for young people to do that. What is it like? Wish her good luck from us.

That's all our news for today. It's time for me to pick up the children from school. Write soon!

Love,
Carrie.

Travel Q & A

Q

My girlfriend and I are thinking of going on holiday in Switzerland this May, but we aren't sure what kind of things to take with us. We aren't really interested in skiing, but we'll probably mix a bit of city tourism with some walking in the mountains. Nothing very ambitious, but definitely a few days out to get some exercise. Also, my girlfriend is very good at sailing, so we'd really like to rent a boat for a few days on one of the lakes. But again, we don't know what kind of weather to expect, and sailing on a lake is not the same as sailing out on the open sea. Can you help?

That sounds like a very complete holiday that you're planning! Let's look at your ideas one by one.

➤ To begin with, the cities. You will probably need light clothes for the daytime: cotton shirts and tops, and comfortable trousers. You'll definitely need a good jersey or light jacket if you're going out at night, because it gets quite cool. You might want to take a set of formal clothes too, as the Swiss like to dress nicely to go out.

➤ Next, you say you want to take some day trips to the mountains. You'll obviously need some good walking shoes or boots, and a rain jacket, in case the weather is bad. Perhaps you should also take a survival kit, because mountain hiking can be dangerous, and there are accidents involving tourists every year.

➤ Finally, your sailing plans for the lakes. I think warm clothes for the evening would be the most important thing there. And don't forget a good pair of sunglasses, because the sun can be very bright when it's coming off the water.

C Read a magazine report

- 8 What are the main ideas in the report? Match the ideas a–e with paragraphs 1–5.
- a The good things about the trip
 - b Suggestions for other people doing the trip
 - c Introduction from the magazine editor
 - d Preparing for the trip
 - e The difficulties of the trip

1 Last summer, the team at Outdoor Europe Magazine sent David Plant on a three-week walking trip across the Pyrenees, from the Atlantic to the Mediterranean. Now he reports back on his experience.

2 I had always wanted to go on a high mountain walk. There are some good long-distance walks in the UK, but there aren't any really high mountains. Before leaving, I checked my clothes, equipment, and the weather forecast. I also read a couple of books and looked at some photos and travel blogs on the Internet. This was fine, but you can't compare them with the real thing!

3 A lot of incredible things happened during the trip. Perhaps the best was the complete change from city life. While I was walking, there were no cars, no noise, no rush. The scenery was of course spectacular: valleys, mountain lakes, even a glacier, and there were plants and wildlife that you only see on TV documentaries. And I met so many interesting people along the way, from Europe, Canada, and Japan. The afternoon was always a good time of day, when I arrived at my accommodation and made new friends. They tell you where they've been; you tell them where you're going; you exchange stories and advice. It's just amazing!

4 But of course there are always problems. In this case, the weather. High mountains mean that the weather can change very quickly. We even had snowstorms in July! When your clothes get very wet, it isn't easy to dry them, so you're uncomfortable the next day. And climbing mountains is hard on your knees, too. And there's always the risk of slipping or falling on the paths, where not even a mobile phone can help you very much.

5 For me, however, the whole walk was a unique experience that I'll always remember. If I did the trip again, there's just one other thing I would do: lots of physical training before the walk!

- 9 Underline the correct option.
- 1 David prepared / didn't prepare for the trip.
 - 2 He most enjoyed the peace and quiet / meeting new people on the way.
 - 3 Bad weather meant that he couldn't see the views / was sometimes uncomfortable.
 - 4 He had / didn't have a serious accident on the way.
 - 5 On the whole, he feels he was / wasn't fit enough before doing the trip.

- 4 I'm enclosing a photograph. It's not a problem for me to travel in August. I look forward to hearing from you.

Unit 8 Skills Practice

A Read an anecdote

1 Read the story and number the pictures in order.

Have I told you the story of my girlfriend in Thailand? It's a lovely story of how well people manage to communicate, even if they don't speak the same language.

Well, my girlfriend and I were living in a rented flat, which had a tiny garden outside. And in the garden we planted some vegetables. The only problem was the insects. There were hundreds of them, and the plants weren't growing properly. Julie, my girlfriend, had only been in Thailand about a month, so she didn't speak the language. You can probably imagine how she managed. She communicated by pointing at things in shops, and then counting on her fingers, to show how many she wanted. And smiling a lot, of course. She was very good at that.

Anyway, going back to the problem of the insects, they were eating all the vegetables, so Julie really had to do something to stop them. She's a very practical person, so she put some of the insects in a plastic bag, and went down to one of the shops near the market. In the shop, she showed the owner the insects in the bag, and then made a sign of cutting her throat, to show that she wanted to kill them. The man didn't understand at first, but then his wife made the same sign, and laughed. Then they all laughed, and they sold Julie some insecticide, which worked perfectly. And after that, each time she passed the shop, the owners would wave to her with a big smile, and make that sign of cutting throats!

2 Answer the questions.

1 Think about the main purpose of the story.

Tick ✓ whether you think it is to:

a inform b explain c entertain

2 The message of the story is to show a how important it is to learn a foreign language.

 b that you can communicate well without words.
 c how cultural misunderstandings happen.

3 Read the story again. Write True or False.

- 1 They bought the flat with the tiny garden. False
 2 Julie could read and write Thai quite well. _____
 3 Julie took a plastic bag down to the shop. _____
 4 Julie knew the Thai word for 'kill'. _____
 5 The shop owners understood what she meant straight away. _____
 6 Julie got exactly what she needed from the shop. _____

B Listen to an anecdote

What do tourists think?

1 A national magazine recently decided to conduct a survey on tourism. They received many letters from local people on the subject. But first they talked to tourists in the street. They interviewed men and women from different countries, to find out what they thought.

2 Many of the positive answers were fairly predictable, while others were more surprising. 90% of those interviewed said what they most enjoyed was the weather. Another high percentage – 84% – were very positive about the food in the local restaurants. 75% were very enthusiastic about the local festivals, and said that it was wonderful to see how people had kept up their traditions even into the 21st century. Many said this had not happened in their own countries.

60% commented that local people were very helpful and patient with foreign visitors. Interviewees praised the schoolchildren in particular, who were very good, they said, at dealing with communication problems politely.

3 Some of the answers, on the other hand, were not so positive. 70% of the interviewees complained about prices, and said that these had become more expensive in recent years. 50% also complained that many souvenir shops had the same prices, which wasn't very competitive.

- 7 What were the tourists' impressions? Write P for positive or N for negative.

Unit 9 Skills Practice

A Read for general meaning

1 Read the charity advertisement quickly and decide the correct order of paragraphs A–C.

2 Which paragraph

- gives more details?
- calls for action?
- presents the problem?

ORPHANS IN AFRICA

Can you help?

A Is there nothing we can do? Fortunately, there are solutions. Firstly, the right kind of medicine can keep parents alive for longer. Secondly, foster parents can take children into their homes until they are old enough to work. Thirdly, food and health care programmes can also be organized. But, like everything in life, all these things need money. If you worry about orphans, you can help us to help them. £20 a month will help one of these children survive. Call us at Orfancare, on 0112-687-4933 or visit our website www.orfancare.org.

B Why not think about that for a minute? If these children have no parents, they probably won't go to school. What's more, if they lose their homes, they'll live in groups in the streets. Moreover, if they want to eat, they'll probably have to look for food in the rubbish. In addition, children like these are often the victims of violence and crime, so they'll sometimes become child soldiers in local wars. On top of that, many older children have to look after three or four younger children, with no help from parents or grandparents.

C Do you ever stop to think about the future? Maybe you worry about a job, or the kind of car you'd like to buy. Maybe you worry about the exams you need to pass, or who your children are with at the moment. If you lived in Africa, maybe you'd worry about orphans: the 40 million or more children who have lost one or both parents because of war, AIDS, or other diseases.

3 Read the advertisement more carefully, and write true, false or doesn't say.

- 1 40 million African children have lost their parents in a war. _____
- 2 Most African children are unable to attend school. _____
- 3 There's a chance that orphaned children will become child soldiers. _____
- 4 Many African children living in poverty take responsibility for their younger brothers and sisters. _____

- Our impact on the environment
- The real price of a gold watch
- How not to waste water

How many of us realize the true cost of the standard of living we enjoy? Fortunately, we live on a planet that is rich in natural resources. Unfortunately, we probably do not take enough care of those resources. Human activity can have an enormous impact on the environment. A couple of examples will show us how great that impact can be.

THE ARAL SEA SPLITS

In the early 1960s, the Aral Sea in Central Asia was the fourth-biggest lake in the world. By 2004, however, this lake was tragically only a quarter of its original size. What had caused such a drastic change?

Two large rivers flow into this body of water. In the 1940s, an ambitious government decided to use a lot of water from the rivers for irrigation. Unsurprisingly, the lake started to dry up, because it wasn't receiving enough water. In 1987, it split into two parts: the North Aral Sea and the South Aral Sea.

Around the year 2000, however, another government took action. The irrigation systems were changed and a dam was built between the North and South Seas. Thankfully, the North Aral Sea level is rising again, fish have returned and the regional environment has improved.

INDONESIAN GOLD MINE CONTAMINATES RIVER

In the south of Spain in 1998, a dam full of toxic mining waste collapsed and seriously contaminated 45 km of river next to a National Park. Luckily, public reaction was very strong, and the damage was repaired. But the world's biggest gold mine – the Grasberg Mine in Eastern Indonesia – has been dumping uncontrolled waste in rivers for 40 years, and will continue to do the same, as there are no environmental agreements in the region. So if you think your gold watch is expensive, just think of the price paid by the land and people who live near the mine!

Does technology really provide solutions?

POSTED BY REDROOSTER ON FEB 4TH.

New discussion

I think technology's fun, but I get a bit scared when I stop to think about it. OK, so the Internet provides communication, and car safety gets better. But when things break down, they cost so much more to repair! Is this really making life easier? I don't think so.

ADD YOUR COMMENTS

Rocinante says: Feb 10th, 4.32 p.m.

a Technology comes from industry. But industry causes pollution. It's true that there are environmental laws and agencies. ¹ Fortunately / Unfortunately, for every 'clean' company, there are ten 'dirty' ones. Don't forget disasters like Bhopal in India, where 20,000 people died. ² Luckily / Incredibly, 25 years later, there are still people who have had no compensation for that.

Roger-dodger says: Feb 15th, 6.49 p.m.

b It seems that you don't appreciate the benefits of technology. ³ Exactly / Clearly, you can only see the bad things. But what about all the helpful inventions? Don't you use mobile phones, cars, and the Internet? Yes, there are problems. We need to recycle much more, and we need to use cleaner energy. ⁴ Fortunately / Unfortunately, though, technology is working on these things too: biofuels, alternative energies, biodegradable materials – these things are already with us!

Hayley says: Feb 16th, 9.13 p.m.

c I think you both have valid arguments. To my mind, however, there's another key question here. What kind of solution is a virtual world like Second Life, or the Internet? ⁵ Luckily / Clearly these things are popular, but I'm not sure they're very 'helpful'. Isn't this 'solution' just an escape from the real world? I'm so busy in real life that I don't have time for a virtual life – ⁶ Thankfully! / Incredibly!

10 Unit 10 Skills Practice

A Read a problem page letter

- 1 Read the text quickly. Where do you think it is from?
- a a financial newspaper
 - b a consumer magazine
 - c a shopping catalogue

People tell me that I have a problem with shopping. And maybe I have been spending more time shopping lately. I mean, I go to the mall every weekend, and maybe once or twice in the week as well. The shop windows are really great – there's always something different to see. And it's true that I pick up a few things when I'm there.

But then there are the sales as well. I can't resist shopping for bargains in the sales. My wife tells me we don't need all those things, but they're so cheap and such good quality ... 'Don't go shopping unless you can control your spending!' she says. But we've reached the point where she's been threatening to get my credit card cancelled. Life's getting tough!

Bill, Hackney

This sounds like a case of compulsive shopping, and hundreds, maybe thousands, of people share the same obsession. I'm afraid there's no easy solution, although there are a number of options we can recommend.

One thing you could do is to try making a list before you go out. You won't buy so many things if you think first about what you really need.

Another good idea would be to check your budget. How much can you afford to spend? If you can't control your money, don't take your credit card with you! For example, take a £50 note and say: 'I can buy what I want, as long as it doesn't cost more than £50.' (Obviously you can only do this once a week, or once a month!)

Lastly, if you still can't control things, maybe you should just avoid going to the shops. There's a lot more to life than just shopping. Instead of spending your family's income, spend time with them. Be sociable! Take up a hobby, go cycling or swimming, or go out with your friends. But let someone else do the shopping.

A Three months later, they visited the building site again, and saw machines moving the earth. After another month, they saw the basic structures of the houses. Two weeks after that, they saw a TV report on a construction scandal, with photographs of the disappeared agent and builder, wanted by the police. But there was no news of all the money that 50 families had paid in advance.

B They found an advert in the local newspaper and went to see an estate agent, a smartly-dressed middle-aged man. If they wanted a quality home at a reasonable price, he said, they had come to the right place. He showed them the plans for a new housing development on the edge of town, in a secluded area away from the main roads. He took them to the site to meet the builder personally. The Smiths were very happy, and paid half the cost of the house in advance.

C In the end, the Smiths realized that they had been tricked. The story shows that you have to be very careful who you trust, especially with your money.

A Hey, that's a lovely shirt you're wearing! Where did you get it?
B Skirt? What skirt? I'm not wearing a skirt!
A No, no! Not a skirt! Your shirt! S-H-I-R-T!
B Oh! Right! Er, sorry, I thought you said skirt.
A So, where did you get it?
B Ah, er, it was a present, actually.
A Anything else, madam?
B Yes, please. Um, half a kilo of peas.
A Of course. Blue or white?
B Blue or white?
A Yes, madam. We have a blue cheese, that's quite strong in flavour, and a white cheese. That's very fresh and mild. Which one would you like?
B But I asked you for peas. P-E-A-S. And peas are green!
A So ... you don't want any cheese?
B No, thank you! Just half a kilo of peas!
A Coming up, madam.
- 3
A Excuse me! Are you ready to order now?
B Yes, please. Fish for my wife.
A Which fish, sir? The salmon or the tuna?

- B Er, the tuna, please. With rice.
A Right. And for you, sir?
B Well, what's the soap of the day?
A Soap, sir?
B Yes, what kind of soap do you have?
A Erm, the soap's in the toilet, sir. Do you mean soup? We have some delicious vegetable soup today ...
B Oh, yes, yes of course! Soup! I'm sorry.

A And your surname, please?
B Welsh.
A Could you just spell that?
B W - E - L - S - H
A W - E - L - S - 8. So why do you have a number at the end of your name?
B A number? What number? I don't have a number in my name!

Sits with locals just like us.
Quite often, she'll stop and chat
To find out where you're at.
Sometimes she even stops for tea
But she hardly ever writes to me!

- M Gerry Bayne! I haven't seen you for ages!
G Hello, Maggie! I thought you lived in Spain now?
M Oh, I'm just home for Christmas for a week or so.
G How's it all going?
M Well, pretty good on the whole ... but I still have problems adapting.
G Like what?
M Well, just the other day, for example. In Spain, when you meet people, you kiss them on the cheeks.
G And?
M Well, I met some new people, and when I went to kiss them on the cheeks, they kind of stood back.
G Oh yes?
M I felt very uncomfortable.
But my friends say that not everyone kisses people on the cheeks, not even the Spanish themselves.
G So how do you know what to do?
M Well, they say it's best to wait just a moment, watch what the other person does, and then just do the same.
G Hmm. Well, I can think of a few cases when that doesn't work either.
M Really?
G Yes. I was working in Sri Lanka and southern India recently.
M Lucky you!
G Right ... but I was always getting confused because they shake their heads to say yes, and nod their heads to say no.
M I didn't know that!
G Yes, they do it all the time. Just the opposite of what we do. And I just couldn't get used to it.
M Well, they must find it difficult to understand what we mean, too.
G Yes, that's true. I didn't think of that.

I went to school in my home town, Hannover, in northern Germany. I lived near the school and cycled there and back every day. Yes, it was OK. I learned a lot, and then I went to university, to, um, study Chemistry. It was always my favourite subject at school. The Chemistry teacher was great fun and his lessons were always interesting. I didn't like Languages; they were so boring. But of course, I've had to learn English since I left school, for my professional life.
I come from a small town in central France. School? Er, I went away to boarding school because there was no high school in my town. So I ate and slept at school during the week, and stayed at home with my family at weekends. I didn't mind too much, but I missed my mother's cooking. The meals at school weren't very nice! The school subjects were not so difficult for me, but, er, I didn't like Chemistry very much – there were always terrible smells in the Chemistry lab!
- 3
I went to school in the south of Spain, and it was very traditional – the teacher was always right! If you didn't understand the explanations, you must be a bit stupid. Most of the subjects were boring for me. I had to repeat my exams in September quite a lot. Oh, but I enjoyed being with my classmates. And the basketball team I played in always did very well in competitions.
I have very mixed memories of school. I went to a secondary school in the north of England. We learned our subjects well enough, but when I look back on it, I don't think school prepared me for real life. Everyone said how important it was to get good marks, but nobody taught us how to make decisions. They still had corporal punishment, if we got into trouble. You know, the teachers were allowed to hit us on the hands with a cane. That doesn't happen any more these days. Just as well, because it certainly didn't solve anyone's problems!

V Not bad, thanks, Max. And you?
M Fine today. Not so good yesterday, though.
V So what happened yesterday?
M You didn't go to the Skitoid Kids' concert, did you?
V No, I couldn't get tickets! So what was it like?
M Well, the first part was pretty exciting. We were halfway down the stadium, but we could see the band on the big video screens.
V Did they play Hate your Love? That's my favourite song. I absolutely adore the guitar solo in the middle!
M Yeah, they did. Um, the rock songs were just amazing. But I'm not so keen on the slow songs, you know, the ballads.
V Don't you like them?
M I can't stand them. They're so boring.
V Oh – I think they do them really well.

M Anyway, like I said, the first part was great, but the second part was really bad.
V Why? What happened?
M To begin with, we couldn't hear the vocals properly. That's really annoying. The sound quality was dreadful, and I couldn't hear the words.
V What a shame!
M Yes. But that wasn't the worst thing!
V You mean it got worse than that?
M Haven't you heard? They had to cancel the second part of the concert, because of the rain.
V Oh no! I didn't know that! That's terrible! I mean, you don't mind getting cold if the music's all right, but heavy rain is a different matter. You must be really disappointed, then.
M Yeah. They say they'll do another concert in the spring.
V Well, that's good news!
M Mmm. But I don't know if I'll go next time.
V Well, I'll make sure I get a ticket for that one!

C Hi, John! Have you just come back from your summer break?
J Hi there, Cornelia! Yes, I got back home last weekend. Did you have a good summer?
C Great, thanks. I heard you've been living and working in a kind of community!

J That's right. It was just incredible!
C So, tell me more! Where was it? What was it like?
J Well, I was in a village restoration project in Italy.
C A what?
J Well, it's voluntary, and it's a kind of work camp you do in the summer holidays. And the volunteers live and work together, and share experiences.
C Experiences?
J There are people from lots of different countries. We talked a lot, and exchanged stories about where we're from and things.
C So what did you actually do there?
J We lived in a primary school, we shared the kitchen and bathroom, but there were separate bedrooms. I shared a room with an American, a German, and a guy from Croatia.
C Hmm. A bit like a large family then?
J Yes, that describes it pretty well!
C So was it easy to get along together?
J Sometimes yes, sometimes no! But we didn't have any serious problems.
C And what kind of work did you have to do?
J Basically, we worked outside. There were a lot of plants in the village, so we cleared the streets and paths, and, um, we repaired fences and stone walls.
C Wow. But you didn't work seven days a week?
J Definitely not! Weekends were free. I mean, you have to have time to relax.
C Mmm. Would you recommend the experience?
J Absolutely! I made a lot of good friends. I learned a lot about Italy and also Croatia. Yeah, I had a great time!
C That sounds good! Can you give me an email address for more information?

A So, have you ever lost anything?
B Well, not exactly lost, no. But I once had my camera stolen.
A That's terrible! What happened?
B Er, I was travelling with friends and we stopped to have a meal, and I left the bag in the car.
A Hmm. A bit risky, though.
B I thought it was safe enough, because I could see the car from the restaurant.
A Aha! But the thieves got in anyway.
B Yeah, from the other side.
A Oh dear! Did you ever get it back?
B No way! But luckily it was insured, so I bought another one with the insurance money.
A Well that wasn't so bad then, was it?
B No, that was OK. Just that I lost all the photos. Anyway, what about you?
B
A Me? Oh, I think the worst thing I've ever lost was a couple of suitcases at an airport.
B Really?
A That's right. We'd been to South Africa, on holiday, and then flew back home.
B A direct flight?
A No, it wasn't. We stopped for a few hours in Nigeria. But that wasn't the problem.
B Uh-huh ...
A Well, the suitcases just didn't appear in the airport. They couldn't find them anywhere.
B Didn't you get them back later?
A Oh, we filled in a lot of forms, and made a lot of phone calls, but we never saw them again.
B Oh. And what was in the cases?
A Mainly clothes and stuff, you know. But what really hurt was losing all the presents we'd bought for the family. There was no way the airline could replace them.
B What a shame!
A Yeah. The only thing the family got to see was the photos, because we had the camera in our hand luggage.
C
A Well I lost my car once, you know.
B Your car? How could you possibly lose your car?

- A But I did, I'm telling you! I had to go up to Scotland on a business trip for a week, you see, so I took the car.
- B And?
- A Well, it was that time of year. I mean, it was late January – the middle of winter.
- B Did somebody steal the car?
- A No, no! There was a freak snowstorm during the night, and when I came down in the morning, I couldn't see the car park for the snow!
- B And the cars?
- A All buried in the snow!
- B Did you have to dig it out, then?
- A Oh, no! They told us we'd have to wait a day or two for the snow to melt, otherwise we'd only damage the cars.
- B So what did you do?
- A I just stayed an extra couple of days in the hotel! The roads were all blocked anyway ...

I don't really know what I want to do when I leave school. I think I'll probably take a year off, maybe go abroad and find a job. I speak a bit of Spanish, so I could go to Spain. I like the sound of the Canary Islands! Lots of sunshine all year. And then after that? Well, I suppose I'll start looking for a proper job. My uncle's got two shops in town, and I could help him there. And when I get enough money, I'm going to buy a car!

When I finish my degree, the first thing I'm going to do is find a Mediterranean beach and do nothing for two weeks! After that, I'm going to travel around Mexico for a month. I've got a friend who works there, and I've always wanted to visit that part of the world. Then it'll be time to start work. I've had five interviews in the last four months, and one of them offered me a job, so I may start with them and see what happens. That'll be in September.

C
Summer holidays? I haven't thought about them, really. Haven't had much time. We're a bit tired of the beach, so we'll probably go for something different this year. Maybe a touring holiday with a caravan. You know, go and see France properly. Or maybe we'll rent one of those mountain chalets in Switzerland and enjoy the fresh air. But I mean, we're definitely going abroad. The weather's always better!

D
The Christmas holidays? Well, we can't really go abroad, because there isn't enough time. The children are still at school till the week before Christmas. We usually go to my parents' house on Christmas Day, and for New Year's Day we go to my husband's parents. I imagine we'll probably do the same this year – it'll be good to spend some time with them. One thing we're not going to do is leave all the shopping till the last minute. I've done most of the shopping already and we're going out on Friday for the final few presents.

A You know Saskia who works in the clothes shop?
B Yeah?
A Well, the most incredible thing happened to her last week.
B Oh yeah? What was that?
A Well, there she was, organizing the clothes in the shop, when this man came in.

- B And?
- A He said he wanted a dress for his wife's birthday. So, Saskia asked him about all the usual things – size, colour and she showed him what they had in the shop.
- B Mmm ...
- A He looked through them, chose two, and paid for them in cash. But ten minutes later, he came back again.
- B Why was that?
- A He said one of the dresses was too small, and asked Saskia to find a bigger size for him. So she went into the back of the shop to find one, but when she came out, he was gone.
- B Well maybe he was in a hurry.
- A Well, yes, I suppose he was! Because he took the shop computer and cash till as well!
- B You're joking!
- A No, no! It's all true!
- B But how did he manage that? I mean, cash machines are big, heavy things! You don't carry them around in a shopping bag!
- A Well, it seems he parked a small van just outside the shop, left the van open, put the machines in the back and just drove off. It happened so fast that nobody really noticed! People only realized there was something wrong when Saskia came running out of the shop!

S Hey guys! My grandfather left me some money in his will, and I'm thinking of giving it to charity. What do you think?

Do Great idea! Good for you, Stella. How about Green Planet? They do lots of great environmental work all over the world.

S Yes, I suppose so. I don't know much about them though, Donna.

Do Well, if you give them the money, it'll go directly into green projects, like protecting the rainforests, or helping endangered animals.

Dm Hang on a minute! They also spend a lot of money on political campaigning, don't they?

Do But only where governments are doing things to harm the environment.

Dm OK, but if I had money to give to charity, I'd want to be sure I knew where that money is going.

S Maybe you've got a point, Dmitri. So what would you suggest instead?

Dm I'd give money to charities for people, before the environment. How about that OrfanCare charity we saw the advert for? That has to be a good cause, doesn't it? Orphans in Africa?

S That's true. But without a better environment, we're all going to die anyway!

Do I'm with Stella. Quite right! Climate change will cause all sorts of natural disasters if we don't act quickly. Green Planet are campaigning for governments to use solar power and recycle their paper.

Dm What's that got to do with it? That's not going to change the world very quickly, is it?

S I think you might be right there, Dmitri. I want to support a charity that makes a real difference to real people.

Dm Exactly! Well, why not sponsor a child then? You can't get much more real-world than that. You get to know a real child and their family, and your money helps the whole community on development projects, schools, healthcare, that kind of thing.

S Really? That sounds perfect! Can you tell me more about it?

B Erm, there was a clearance sale at the furniture shop, dear. Four for the price of three!
R But we don't need ten mirrors, Bill, do we?
B All right, but we can keep them for the children! You know, for when they're older!
R I don't think so, Bill. Our children are not yet four years old! And in any case, we haven't got enough walls for so many mirrors!
B Well, OK, I suppose you're right. But you must admit, those shoes were a real bargain!
R Which shoes? The ones you bought last week?
B No – the three pairs I bought this morning.
R Oh, no – you haven't been buying shoes again!
B Only three pairs!
R But you promised me you wouldn't buy any more!
B OK, that's true. But they're real leather, and the price was just unbeatable!
R Where did you get the money?
B I borrowed it from my sister. I'm going to pay it back.
R But she told me she wouldn't lend you any more – she must be crazy!
B Well, I'm not so sure about that. She was just helping her brother. She didn't even ask what the money was for.
R Bill, we've been having this shopping problem for three years now. Last year you spent all our holiday money. We had to cancel your credit card. We talked it all over, and you understood you had a problem. Now I discover you've been buying more stuff that we don't need. I thought things were getting better!
B Well, I'm not spending as much as I used to, Ruth.

And somebody has to do the shopping!

- R I know, but we agreed I'd do that until you got better.
B Well, maybe, but I just get bored if I can't go out.

Well, I studied biology at university. But when I graduated, I didn't like the jobs that were on offer – I didn't want to work in a big company, and I knew that I didn't want to teach either. So I went abroad to do voluntary work in Namibia. It was very difficult to begin with. I mean, the climate was totally different, living conditions weren't the same. We often didn't have water for two or three days. But, in time, I grew to love the place, and especially the people. Nowadays, I live and work for six months in the UK, and the other six months in Namibia. I have the best of both worlds! Going abroad was probably the most important decision I've ever made.

Erm, I remember I was 28 at the time, and I'd had the same job for about six years. I designed video games. I mean, the computer part of the games. It was interesting enough, but I needed to do something with my hands. So I signed up for a three-month part-time painting course. And then I met this woman on the course. I mean, I just went crazy. Couldn't take my eyes off her – and she noticed. Well, we started going out together. And that was a big scandal at home, because she was ten years older than me. Just think of it: if I hadn't done the course, I'd never have met her. We've been together for nearly fifteen years, now.

3 Lizzy

I was a terrible student at school. You know, just couldn't get interested in anything. The teachers were boring, the subjects didn't mean anything to me. So of course I got bad marks and then had problems at home – the usual kind of reactions. And then halfway through the third year, this new English teacher arrived, and we started reading these books that just became alive. I don't know how to explain it, but this guy asked questions that no-one else had ever done, and wanted to know our opinions about what we were reading. I failed most of my exams, but because of him, I started writing on my own. I'm 35 now, and I've had six novels published. If he hadn't appeared at school, I'd probably have left at sixteen and gone to work in a fast-food restaurant!
